Berg: „This Riesling comes from the Ried Berg, located south of Feuersbrunn, which with its slate, bedrock and granite soil offers the ideal makings for fruity to minerally white wines. The Riesling Berg is characterized by fresh stone fruit and a racy, animating acidity – an elegant companion for light appetizers. "Berg" is a common name for sites for the southerly descending slopes of the Wagram.

Our vineyard site "Berg" is located on the last terrace, where the Wagram ends in the Tullnerfeld and the low alluvial plains of the Danube. The soil consists of gravel, clay and loess including some primary rock and is well suited for vines ranging from Grüner Veltliner and Riesling to Syrah."

Producer Information

Anton Bauer, born in 1971, represents the 4th generation to manage the now 75 acres winery. After his graduation from the School of Wine and Fruit Growing in Krems, Lower Austria, and a training in Burgundy he worked for more than four years as an oenologist with a renowned Lower Austrian winery. Since 1992, when he took over the winery from his parents, at this time 8 acres, he has been uncompromisingly pursuing his ideas of quality, paying great attention to underlining the typically regional features and the terroir character of the wines that make them incomparable and unique. Anton Bauer was voted "Winemaker of the Year 2016" by the esteemed Falstaff Magazine in Austria. His wines have been highly rated by Wine Enthusiast and Falstaff Wine Guide.

Wine Region Wagram: The Wagram, a 25-mile long and 100-foot-high ridge between the towns of Krems and Tulln, consists of thousands of years old gravel sediments from the ancient Danube River.

Production: The physiologically ripe grapes are harvested by hand and handled as gentle as possible. When grapes come in from the vineyards they are hand-selected on a sorter belt. An extended period of extensive contact with the yeast makes the wines harmonious, ensuring that there is a quality balance between acidity and alcohol. As the wines are bottled relatively late they can mature slowly. This is exactly part of Anton Bauer's philosophy: Things need time to develop, and wine needs time as well.
